Executive Summary:

This report is an investigation into 2,815 homeless deaths in Los Angeles County between January, 2000 and May, 2007, based on statistics provided by the Los Angeles County Coroner's office.

- Homelessness in Los Angeles: Los Angeles [city and county] has the disgrace of being the homeless capital of the United States with over 73,000 homeless people in the County of Los Angeles, approximately 50% of that in the City of Los Angeles. Only 16.7% of Los Angeles County's homeless population is sheltered, which is lowest percentage of any major city.

- Results:
 - Total deaths: 2,815 homeless deaths from January 1, 2000 to May 28, 2007, an average of more than one per day for the nearly 7.5 year period.

 - Demographics:
 - Gender: 2,406 (85%) of them were male, and 409 (15%) were female.
 - Ethnicity: 41% were Caucasian; 31% were Hispanic; 25% were African American; 1% were Asian and 1% were American Indian.
 - Age: the average age of death was 48.1 years, falling far short of the 77.2 year life expectancy of the average American. The age range of these homeless deaths was 0-89.

 - Leading known causes of death: [As noted, since we did not have access to the death certificates, this analysis may have over estimated the percentage of cardiovascular causes of death and under counted substance use]. The leading known causes of death were cardiovascular [24.4%]; [followed by “unknown”]; followed by substance use [22%] with trauma [17.8%] being the third leading cause of death among homeless people. Even with the disclaimer of lack of access to death certificates, these three causes of death among homeless people are consistent with other studies conducted in Seattle, San Francisco, New York and Boston.

- Geography: Not just in “Skid Row:” The largest concentration of Los Angeles County’s homeless deaths occurred within the City of Los Angeles (1,277 or 45 %). Other communities with homeless deaths included Long Beach (154), Santa Monica (111), Pasadena (55) and Hollywood (48).
- Season: Winter claimed the most homeless deaths with 27% of the total deaths, followed by Summer [25%]; Spring [24%] and Fall [23%].
- Lives cut short: The 2,815 homeless people in our study were expected to live 211,878 years based on the average life expectancy of their gender and ethnicity. They only survived 135,528 of those expected years. In other words, their lives were cut short by 76,350 years. On average a homeless person’s life is 36% shorter than a housed person’s life. For homeless Latina females, their lives were 49% shorter than expected.
- Recommendations:
 1. Annual report from LA County
 2. Improved access to primary and preventive care
 3. Support overdose prevention programs
 4. Promote recovery
 5. Improved discharge planning
 6. Regional priority to end and prevent homelessness through creating permanent housing
 7. Increase economic stability through employment and income supports. Raise the General Relief grant level.

I. An Introduction to Homelessness in Los Angeles County:

When a homeless person dies they do not often get the same sense of dying with dignity as a housed person. December 21st has been commemorated as the National Homeless Persons' Memorial Day by the National Coalition for the Homeless in partnership with the National Health Care for the Homeless Council for communities around the nation to commemorate the lives of homeless people that passed away.

Local advocates and service providers celebrate the lives of thousands of homeless people in hundreds of cities around the nation with candlelight vigils, a reading of names, and other acts to remember the lives of those lost while living on the streets of our nation.

This report is an investigation into homeless deaths in Los Angeles County between January, 2000 and May, 2007, based on statistics from the Los Angeles County Coroner's office. It is our hope that the homeless people who make up the statistics in this report did not die in vain and that policy makers move to implement the recommendations of this report in an effort to provide the dignity they did not find while living on the streets of our community. Equally important, to implement these strategies to help prevent the untimely deaths of homeless people in the future.

Homelessness in Los Angeles:

Los Angeles has the disgrace of being the homeless capital of the United States with over 73,000 homeless people in the County of Los Angeles on any given night and over 140,000 experiencing homelessness at some point during the year.

In other words, one out of 5 people who are homeless in California is homeless in LA, while conservatively one out of every eleven people who is homeless in this country is homeless in LA. If the homeless population comprised a “city” in LA County, their composition would be the 26th largest city among the 88 cities in the county.

Overwhelmingly, the homeless population in LA are people of color, with African Americans representing nearly 50% of homeless people. 70% are male, while 30% are female and veterans, including veterans from Afghanistan and Iraq make up about 25% of the homeless population.

Currently, only 16.7% of Los Angeles County’s homeless population is sheltered, which is lowest percentage of any major city. By contrast, Philadelphia, for example, shelters 97.4% of its homeless and Denver shelters 93.3%.

Since 2005, the number of homeless people on Skid Row has increased 40% and the number of homeless people in jail is up 175%. The higher concentration of poverty and homelessness impacts the health of homeless people by enlarging the responsibilities of public services beyond their already thinly stretched reach.

It is a disgrace that such a small percentage of the homeless population in LA is sheltered. With no resources and, forced to live outside, in their cars and in abandoned buildings, it’s no wonder that hundreds of homeless people die without dignity in our community every year.

II. Methodology:

The individuals who appear in this study were included because they were declared as homeless by the Los Angeles County Coroner's office when their bodies were brought into the morgue. The Coroner's office considers persons homeless if they did not have a home address at the time of their death. If the Coroner is able to contact the deceased's next of kin, their homeless status remains on record.

LACEH&H did an initial analysis of the causes of death and then consulted with the Homeless Liaisons for the Los Angeles Departments of Health Services and Public Health, given that they were conducting a one year study based not only on the Coroner's report but also the death certificates. They indicated that our figures were higher than their initial findings in cardiac related deaths and lower than their findings in drug related deaths. They also encouraged us to utilize the classification scheme used in the Seattle-Kings County study which we did.

LACEH&H then recruited a physician that works in a local shelter to re-analyze our initial findings related to causes of death and use the Seattle classification scheme. Nevertheless, the analysis which is presented in this report most likely undercounts the drug related deaths. The disclaimer for our study is that without access to official death certificates it is difficult to generate accurate numbers regarding deaths caused by cardiovascular disease. Undoubtedly in some cases where the cause of the death is categorized as cardiovascular disease, the condition was caused by alcohol and/or substance use. Ultimately, access to the official death certificates would have provided the primary underlying cause of death in these cases.

Nevertheless, despite this limitation, Dying Without Dignity paints a tragic picture of seven years of 2,815 lives cut drastically, and unnecessarily, short by the fact that they were homeless.

III. Results from Los Angeles County 2000-2007:

a. Number of Homeless Deaths

The Los Angeles County Coroner's office reported 2,815 homeless deaths from January 1, 2000 to May 28, 2007.

As an average, this is more than one per day for the nearly 7.5 year period.

b. Comparison of Data

The range of homeless deaths spans from a low of 270 in 2002 to a high of 551 in 2006. The largest increase occurred between 2002 and 2003 when deaths increased from 270 to 393, a 45.5% increase in one year. Predictions indicate the year 2007 will experience a decline in homeless deaths. Through five complete months of 2007 there have been 180 homeless deaths recorded, just 32.6% of the previous year's total over a 12 month span. If 2007 does show a decline in numbers, it will be the first time since 2002 that Los Angeles County has seen a decrease in homeless deaths.

c. Demographic Characteristics

- Gender: As shown in Figure 1, of the 2,815 homeless deaths, 2,406 (85%) of them were male, and 409 (15%) were female.

- Ethnicity: The racial/ethnic makeup of these deaths shows that 1,151 (41%) were Caucasian, 868 (31%) were Hispanic, 717 (25%) were African American, 33 (1%) were Asian, 26 (1%) were American Indian, and 29 (1%) were of other ethnicities. These figures are shown in Figure 2.

- Age: As shown in Figure 3, the average age of death was 48.1 years, falling far short of the 77.2 year life expectancy of the average American. The age range of these homeless deaths was 0-89. The age distribution shows there were 95 (3.3%) deaths in the zero to 24 years-old age group, 918 (32.6%) deaths in the 25 to 44 age group, 1,575 (56.0%) deaths in the 45 to 64 age group, and 225 (8.0%) in the 65 and over age group.

The average life span of the deceased homeless in Los Angeles County covered just 62.3% of the life expectancy of a person living in the United States.

d. Leading Known Underlying Causes of Death: See Table 1 & Figure 4:

- 1. *Cardiovascular: The primary cause of death among the 2,815 homeless was cardiovascular problems, accounting for 686 (24.4%) deaths. Again, it is important to note: without access to official death certificates, the primary underlying cause of death (such as alcohol and/or substance abuse) in these cardiovascular cases is unknown.

Unknown: Unknown causes of death ranked second in the listing we were provided. The high death rates and low life expectancy highlighted reported here constitute an extremely serious health disparity for the homeless population group. Public health authorities should monitor, report on and plan for the health of homeless persons to a far greater extent than is currently the case.

2. Substance Use: The second most common cause was acute intoxication, which accounted for 619 (22.0%) of deaths. The leading substances abused were: heroin, cocaine, morphine and alcohol.

3. Trauma: The third most common were trauma related. In a preliminary review of a coroner's list of causes of death (without access to death certificates), we found that 502 deaths (or 17.8%) were caused by some type of trauma, many of which were related to violent acts or suicides.

See Appendix II for causes of death by year.

Table 1: Leading Underlying Causes of Death

[Note: LACEH&H used the typology developed by the epidemiologists for the Seattle/Kings County report]

Tuberculosis	7	0.2%

e. Geographical Distribution

The largest concentration of Los Angeles County's homeless deaths occurred within the City of Los Angeles (1,277 or 45 %). Although no other area compares to these figures, there are many neighborhoods with significant homeless mortality numbers. For example, Long Beach is second on the list, with 154 homeless deaths, followed by Santa Monica with 111, Pasadena with 55 and Hollywood with 48 [see Table 2]. Virtually every single neighborhood has at least a few homeless deaths on its record, which clearly shows that this is not just a phenomena of “Skid Row,” but extends throughout the county. [See Figure 5].

f. Seasonal Distribution: See Figure 6

Homeless deaths were fairly evenly distributed among the four seasons of the year, and do not appear to be weather-related. Winter was classified as the period of December 23 to March 20, and claimed 770 lives, or 27% of the total deaths. Spring (March 21 – June 20) was the second most deadly season, with 696 deaths [25%] over the seven year span. There were 687 deaths [24%] during the summer (June 21 – September 23) and 660 [23%] during the fall (September 24 – December 22). These numbers do not include the period of May 29, 2007 to the present – when an additional 23-27% of the homeless deaths will occur.

g. Number of Lost Years Due to Early or Untimely Deaths

The 2,815 homeless people in our study were expected to live 211,878 years based on the average life expectancy of their gender and ethnicity. They only survived 135,528 of those expected years. A statistical analysis of the number of years homeless people lived in comparison to the number of years they were predicted to live according to life expectancy revealed that their lives were cut short by 76,350 years. On average a homeless person's life is 36% shorter than a housed person's life.

One of the most startling facts is that for homeless Latinas, their lives were 49% shorter than expected. Their lifetimes were cut in half by homelessness. African American females' lives were 42% shorter than expected and Caucasian females lives were 40% shorter than expected. Latino's lives were 42% shorter than expected, while Asian males' lives were 40% shorter (See Appendix I).

IV. Discussion

a. Comparison to Other Cities

i. New York City:

In 2005 the City of New York passed Local Law 63 (LL63) which requires the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH) to track and report the deaths of homeless persons. In 2006, the DOHMH began releasing quarterly reports and analyses of homeless deaths in New York City. LL63 defines a “homeless person” as “a person who at the time of death did not have a known street address of a residence at which he or she was known or reasonably believed to have resided.” This definition leads to a more accurate account of homeless deaths than does the process used by Los Angeles County.

New York City’s Department of Homeless Services releases a daily census of the number of homeless people living in New York and an annual analysis of these figures which details successful strategies and new partnerships. These studies have shown that the number of unsheltered people has dropped 15% since 2005. Of the remaining unsheltered residents, 1,624 of them live in the city’s subway system. In comparison to Los Angeles County, New York has a much lower homeless population to general population ratio. New York City’s is one in 1,209 while Los Angeles’ is one in 137 according to 2006 data¹.

The demographics of New York City’s homeless population are much more polarized than Los Angeles’. In New York, 60% of the homeless are African American, 25% are Hispanic and 15% are Caucasian. In terms of gender, New York’s single homeless population is 76.8% male and 23.2% female.

Like Los Angeles, New Yorks’ homeless population is aging. Since 1999, individuals over the age of 40 have made up more than 53% of the homeless population.

Nearly 1.7 billion is spent in New York from general funds to combat homelessness. On January 30, 2006, the City of New York released a report titled The Health of Homeless Adults in New York City which outlined five general recommendations including increasing the availability of permanent supportive housing and an immediate action plan to help improve the health of homeless adults in New York.

By comparison, in 2005 the City and County of Los Angeles, in combined local, state, federal and private funds spent only $600 million on homelessness. Los Angeles Mayor Villaraigosa is proposing to spend a paltry .001% in new funds compared to what NYC spends annually. New York has built over 16,000 units of permanent supportive housing, reducing their homeless population significantly; and allowing them to close one of their large shelters of nearly 1,000 beds because they have been successful in ending homelessness for thousands of people.

ii. San Francisco:

The City of San Francisco has released a report on homeless deaths every year since 1987. The study is conducted by the Community Health Epidemiology Section of the City and County of San Francisco Health Department. They do this for two reasons: “so that their names won’t be forgotten and—for more practical purposes—to help us identify the gaps in our City’s system of care where we can best focus our efforts to prevent future homeless deaths.”² In the years ranging from 1990-1999 San Francisco experienced an average of 131.8 homeless deaths per year. Los Angeles, in contrast, averaged 380 deaths per year from 2000-2007, a rate nearly three times as high as San Francisco.

In terms of gender, San Francisco’s homeless deaths have been similar to those of Los Angeles. Homeless deaths have been around 85% male and 15% female. However, in terms of race, San Francisco had higher rates of Caucasian (55%) and African American (28%) homeless deaths than Los Angeles, where

² <http://www.sfdph.org/press/1999PR/pr122299.htm>

Caucasians made up 41% of deaths, while Hispanics made up 31% and African Americans 25%. The homeless population of the Los Angeles study (48.1 years) lived an average of six years longer than population of San Francisco's study (42.3 years).

San Francisco created the Local Homeless Coordinating Board in 1996. On August 1, 2007 the City of Coordinating Board released a five year strategic plan titled Toward Ending Homelessness in San Francisco which addresses the health of homeless people by providing "temporary respite to the medically frail and works towards finding permanent housing for these clients³." These initiatives have created homes for thousands of San Francisco's homeless.

iii. Seattle:

In 2003, the Health Care for the Homeless Network in Seattle-King County released their first King County Homeless Death Review which aimed to elucidate the problem of homeless deaths and health in their area. The Network released another study in 2005 which found there were 82 homeless deaths in Seattle-King County in 2004, 80% of which were men and 20% female. People of color, especially African Americans (15%) and Native Americans (10%), were disproportionately represented in relation to the area's general population, however 63% of the deaths were Caucasian. The top three leading causes of death were: acute intoxication, traumatic injuries, and cardiovascular disease. Illness and other chronic conditions accounted for 33% of deaths. The average age of the homeless was 47 years, with 76% of deaths coming between the ages of 30 and 59 years of age. Most of the deaths occurred in Seattle (71%), followed by South King County (17%). The average life span of 47 fell 30 years short of the national average in 2004 of 77.6 years.

The report outlined five critical steps that aim to alleviate suffering and prevent premature deaths for the County's homeless. The steps call to first, make strategic increases in outreach and engagement. Second, to promote recovery by ensuring that people in homeless shelters, day centers, and housing programs can and do access health care services—including addiction services, mental health care, and medical care. Third, to increase and sharpen strategies to address chronic health conditions such as cardiovascular disease and diabetes among homeless people. Fourth, to increase access to housing and prevent loss of housing: housing is health care. And fifth, to support future homeless death reviews.

iv. Boston:

In 1997, a study was conducted on 606 homeless deaths that occurred in Boston from 1988 to 1993. The sample was comprised of persons who sought medical attention through the Boston Health Care for the Homeless Program between 1 July 1988 and 31 December 1993. The age at time of death ranged from 18 to 86 with an average age of 47 years. An interesting fact brought to light in the study was that while the population of the sample was 68% male and 32% female, the makeup of homeless deaths was 86% male and 14% female.

Nearly half (48%) of the deaths were of people ages 25 to 44 years. Homicide was the leading cause of death for persons between the ages of 18 and 24, followed by traumatic injuries and poisonings (such as drug overdoses). Between the ages of 25 and 44, AIDS was the leading cause of death, however heart disease was also a major contributor. The rate of death from heart disease was more than three times higher than the general population. For older homeless persons, heart disease and cancer were the major causes of death.

From their analysis, the study's authors outlined action steps and recommendations to reduce fatal health problems among Boston's homeless population. The report statistically showed the devastating impact of the AIDS epidemic on Boston's homeless population. Efforts to reduce the rate of AIDS-related deaths in homeless persons and early treatment to prevent HIV infection were made a focus of homeless death prevention. Since pneumonia and influenza were frequent causes of death, even in younger age groups, efforts to vaccinate all homeless persons against such diseases were made into a strong issue. The authors concluded that the efforts to reduce mortality rates among homeless persons should focus on treatable and preventable conditions. The treatment of underlying problems, such as substance abuse, would also need to be addressed⁴.

b. Policy Recommendations:

1. Annual report from LA County:

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors should instruct the appropriate County departments, including the Coroners office, Department of Health Services and the Public Health Department, to conduct an annual analysis of homeless deaths and issue a report along the lines of this report. Deeper analysis into selected homeless death cases can reveal specific weak points in homeless response efforts, and promote more effective work across the systems of care that are organizing to end homelessness in our community. In addition, analysis of homeless cases that are not captured by this methodology may provide greater integrity for comparison between years. In addition, further analysis needs to be done of what week of the month has the highest death rates. For example, Seattle found that it was the first week of the month. The increased number of deaths during the first week of each month may indicate that the arrival of disability checks at the beginning of the month leads to a flurry of substance abuse, injury, and death. If so, mortality in homeless persons might be reduced by carefully monitored payee programs that administer funds on behalf of disabled persons

2. Increase access to Primary and Preventive Care:

The leading causes of death reported here are preventable and treatable. Regrettably, well documented barriers – chiefly lack of health insurance or ability to pay – continue to block homeless persons’ access to care. Local, state and national legislative bodies and health authorities should move immediately to assure that everyone has health care coverage and access to the quality health that can avoid unnecessary deaths. For example, pneumonia and influenza were frequent causes of death, even in younger age groups. Homeless persons may be at increased risk for these infections because of a high prevalence of alcoholism, smoking, HIV infection, and chronic disease. Efforts to vaccinate all homeless persons against pneumonia and influenza should be a priority.

3. Support overdose prevention programs:

Los Angeles County should support and fund overdose prevention programs in emergency shelters, jails, substance abuse programs and other programs where those at high risk for overdose congregate. This would include support for a countywide Naloxone overdose prevention and distribution program as well as support for needle exchange programs countywide.

4. Promote recovery:

Promote recovery by ensuring that people in homeless shelters, day centers, and housing programs can and do access health care services—including addiction services, mental health care, and medical care.

5. Improved discharge planning:

Improve discharge planning from county facilities including hospitals, jails and foster care to ensure that people are not discharge into homelessness.

6. Regional priority to end and prevent homelessness through creating permanent housing:

The high risk for death from homicide and accidental injury is a predictable result of poverty, substance abuse, and living on the streets. Increasing the availability of adequate low-income housing could conceivably reduce this risk. Los Angeles City, County and surrounding cities should pool their funding to begin to create 50,000 units of permanent housing over the next ten years. These jurisdictions should provide interim housing, not shelters, until permanent housing is available.

7. Increase economic stability:

Los Angeles City and County and surrounding cities in greater LA should increase the economic stability of homeless people through increasing employment services, mainstream financial entitlements and education.

Finally, the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors must raise LA Countys' General Relief level [$221 a month- the same level as in 1984] to an amount that will house GR recipients for the entire month.
